

BISHOP'S PEAK

BY TALLEY VINEYARDS

CENTRAL COAST, CALIFORNIA

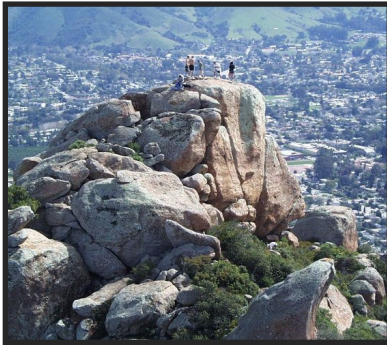

Bishop's Peak Wines are handcrafted by Talley Vineyards to capture the unique diversity of the greater Central Coast region.

The Talley family makes wine under the Bishop's Peak label with this objective: to produce honest wines of good value that display the distinctive character of San Luis Obispo County's two winegrowing regions. These regions are the Paso Robles area to the north, and the Edna and Arroyo Grande valleys in South County. The goal is to produce wines that reflect the unique character of their south central coast origins.

The grapes for Bishop's Peak wines are purchased from growers who share the Talley family's commitment to quality. Brian Talley works closely with these growers to ensure that yields are moderate and that quality is maximized. All Bishop's Peak grapes are hand harvested, and the wines hand crafted by the Talley Vineyards winemaking team.

Bishop's Peak, San Luis Obispo

Bishop's Peak wines are handcrafted to capture the varietal and regional diversity of San Luis Obispo County. Bishop's Peak, an iconic local landmark, was chosen as the symbol for the brand, showcasing wines that are produced in small lots from vineyard sites in the Arroyo Grande Valley, Edna Valley, and Paso Robles Viticultural Areas as well as the Nipomo area south of Arroyo Grande. Some of these sites are owned by the Talley family while others are owned by growers who share the family's commitment to quality. The wines balance production and quality to deliver exceptional value, while maintaining the same attention to detail that is the hallmark of Talley Vineyards.

Talley produces Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Cabernet Sauvignon under the Bishop's Peak label.
